Beauty Was Born In Borneo

You might want to consider a career change: Managing Director of a popular Cruise Line, perhaps?

In preparation for Orion II's 2011 inaugural visits to Borneo, founder and managing director of Orion Expedition Cruises, Sarina Bratton, recently spent time with expedition leader Mick Fogg exploring the natural, historical and cultural highlights of the island.

The result is four 10-day expedition itineraries, for August and September 2011, featuring, by Sarina's account, some truly dazzling wildlife experiences.

Borneo is home to some of the world's oldest tropical rainforests but the natural habitat is being substantially depleted by human activity. For this reason Orion Expedition Cruises will be initiating programs to assist with the reforestation and rehabilitation efforts of local NGOs (Non-government Organisations). And guests on Orion II's 2011 Borneo cruises, after viewing the wilderness untainted, will have a chance to view the work being done in less fortunate regions.

According to Sarina, "Beyond the wildlife experiences and National Parks we will visit, our guests will also have the chance to stay overnight in a rainforest lodge retreat, snorkel with manta rays, scuba dive, see historically important World War II sites... and enjoy cultural interaction with the wonderful, gentle, locals with their longhouses and ancient traditions.
