Kids sail for free

14 December 2010

Children can be expensive. You feed them, clothe them, school them, house them, and to retain a little sanity, occasionally satisfy their whims. And when it comes to that much-needed holiday, you have to pay their way.

That said, for those of you interested in cruising the Pacific coast of the US next year this latter expense may not apply.

Crystal Cruises has a new offer for selected Crystal Symphony cruises in 2011 with children sailing in a third berth with two full-fare adults, travelling for free.

The offer is available for Crystal Symphony's seven-day sailings between Los Angeles and Vancouver on April 10 and 17 and its seven-day roundtrip cruise from Los Angeles on November 20.

The April Pacific coast cruises take in the coast of California and British Columbia with visits including San Francisco, Astoria and Oregon, while the November cruise will stop in San Francisco, Santa Barbara, San Diego and Ensenada, Mexico.
